IMPACT STORY

MYSURU, KARNATAKA • OPENING BATTER • WITH THE TRUST SINCE 2019

ARJUN HEGDE

From watching through a school window to opening the batting

Arjun Hegde grew up watching cricket from a classroom his friends carried him up to. Today he opens the batting for his state and walks into job interviews without fear.

THE BOY AT THE WINDOW

Arjun grew up near the railway colony in Mysuru, where his father drove an auto-rickshaw. Polio took the strength from his legs when he was two.

His school had stairs everywhere. Every morning his friends carried him up to the classroom, and from its window he watched the older boys play cricket in the yard below. He knew every rule, every field position, every bowler's run-up. He had never held a bat.

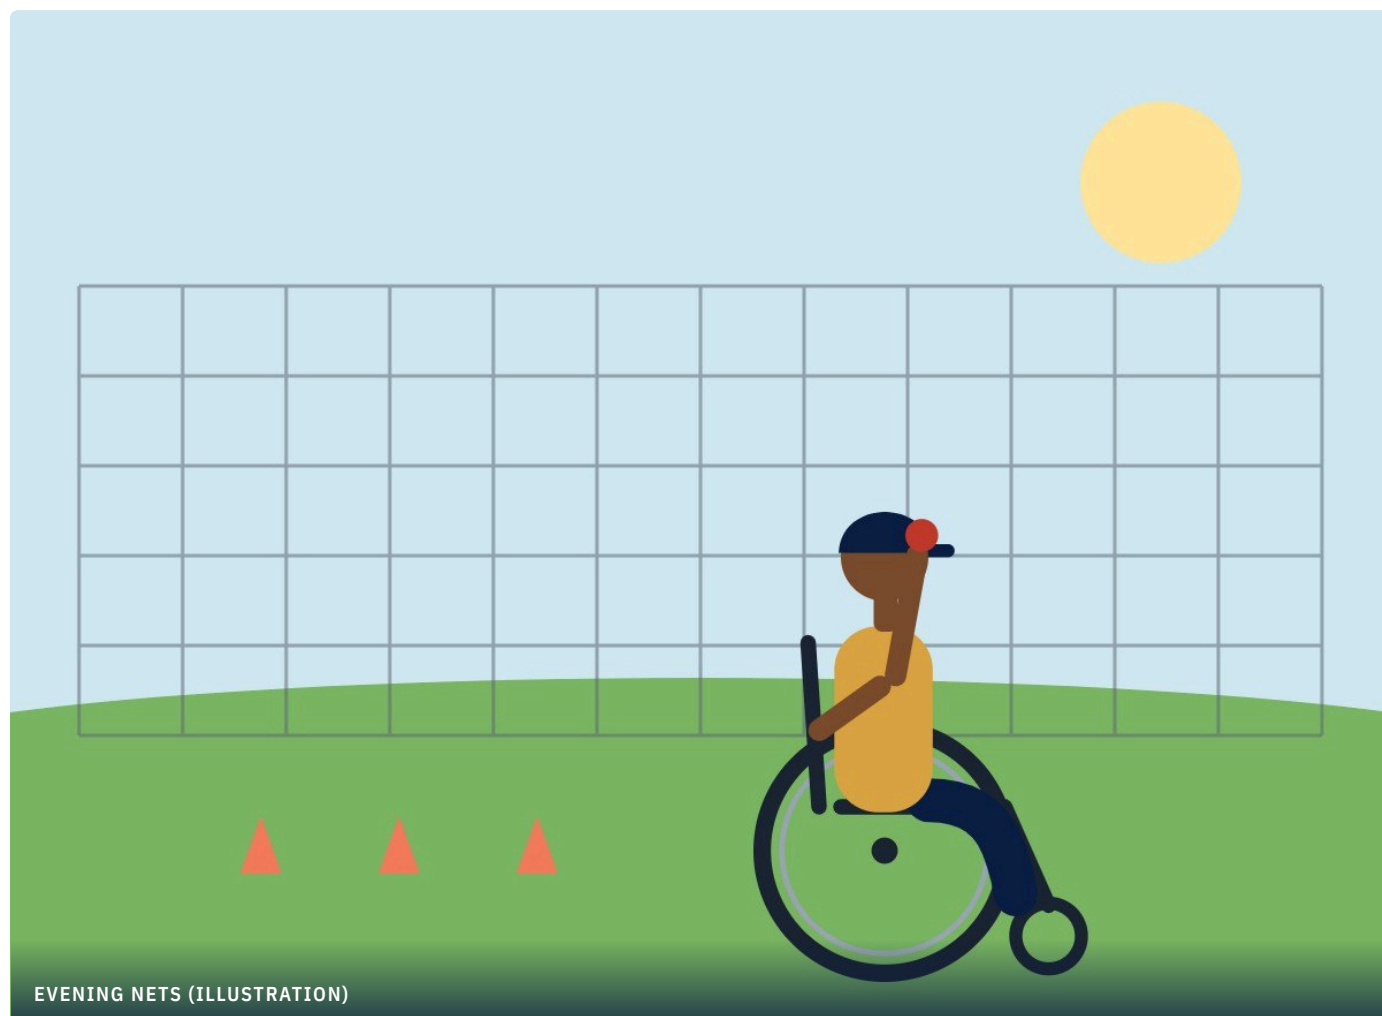

I knew every rule before I ever held a bat.

— ARJUN

YOU CAN PLAY

In 2019 a coach from the trust came to his street with a sports wheelchair and a tennis ball. He told Arjun he could play. Arjun did not believe him until the first ball he faced went to the boundary for four.

That season he trained three evenings a week. The trust arranged his wheelchair, his kit and the bus fare to practice, and paired him with an older player who had once been where he was.

HOW DEMO TRUST STOOD WITH ARJUN

The trust gave Arjun more than equipment. It gave him a team, a timetable and people who expected him to turn up.

WHAT THE TRUST PROVIDED

- ✓ A sports wheelchair fitted to him
- ✓ Coaching camps every season
- ✓ Travel and stay for the nationals
- ✓ A senior player as a mentor

CHAPTER 3 • ON THE FIELD

OPENING FOR THE STATE

Arjun bats at the top of the order, where he likes to see the new ball. In the 2025 South Zone tournament he scored in every match and was named player of the tournament.

His coach says his best quality is patience: he waits for the bad ball and does not give his wicket away.

BEYOND THE BOUNDARY

LIFE OFF THE FIELD

For the first time, Arjun travelled alone on a train. His mother says he talks more at home now, and the neighbours who once pitied him ask for match updates.

WORK AND INDEPENDENCE

He works as an accounts assistant. He says he got the job because cricket taught him to walk into a room as if he belonged there.

CHAPTER 5 • THE ROAD AHEAD

A PATHWAY FOR THE NEXT BOY

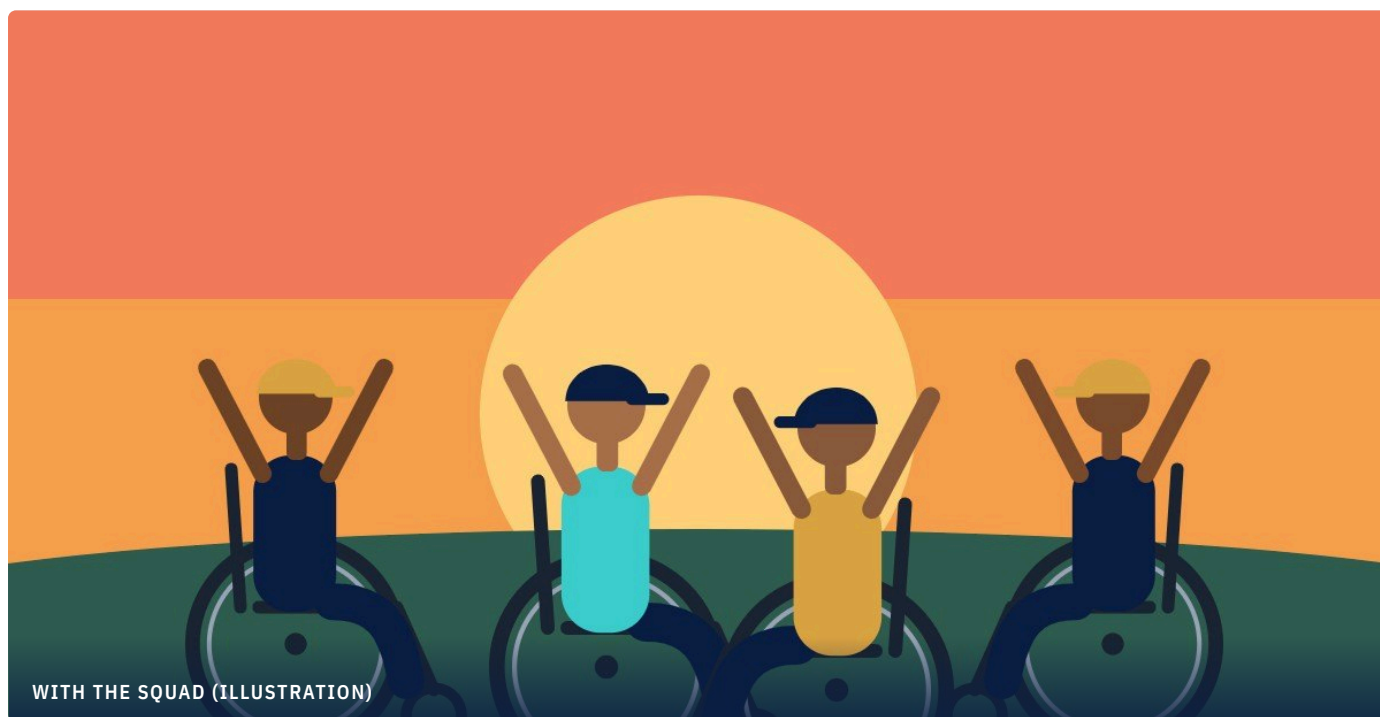

Arjun wants to play for India, and then coach. He already spends Sunday mornings with the under-18 players, teaching them to leave the ball outside off stump.

A MESSAGE TO YOU

“Your support doesn't just give us a wheelchair. It gives us a team, and a reason to come out of the house.”
